

The FCC should not implement any proposal that would lessen Indiana's Telephone Privacy law protections.

Indiana's Telephone Privacy law has greatly improved my time at home. I use to get calls around dinner time, late on Sundays or early Saturday mornings. The solicitors are usually folks you are rude, they really do not like to be hung up on. I have found, at times, that the caller will not disconnect after I have hung up on them. Other times I have found that the incoming call will click, click, click, when answered. This seems to come early in the morning.

Sometime last summer I received over 25 calls from everyone selling siding to selling fruits and nuts. The RCI folks (time sharing calls are pressure sales people).

The Indiana law has reduced my calls to almost one call a week, if that! So FCC stay out of it. Let the Indiana law continue the way it is now! I pay dearly for local telephone service and if I want to buy a service I will call that service. If I want to donate to charities I will select those charities.

Respectfully submitted
S. Michael Stevens